It is not to be taken as a history of the subjects of these illustrations, but merely as a brief outline of their origin and objects. For the facts, dates, and statements quoted, the official records of the city itself, which were personally examined, are the authority. The photographic view of the City Hall, as it exists at present, in 1893, appended to this report, was taken for the Society, by direction of the Board of Officers, to preserve for the future the exact appearance of that edifice before it shall be removed, pursuant to the decision of the Corporation of New-York, to erect a larger City Hall upon its site, arrived at since this report was made and adopted.
