A truly new and original book would be one which made people love old truths. - MARQUIS DE VAUVENARGUES (1715-1747) In short, RISE is a belief in our students and creates a belief within them about themselves. Traditional education focuses on cognitive skills, i.e. facts, analysis, evaluation etc. which are essential. However, RISE curriculum embeds the best cognitive approaches with non-cognitive or character skills. Studies and data are now showing non-cognitive skills such as confidence, persistence, and resiliency are even more essential than academic knowledge to success in school and life. The practices are based on lessons which have withstood time, are taken from ancient philosophies and teachings of different cultures to current scientific studies. These practices are practical answers about how we succeed and win but have been all but lost in a modern culture where the focus is on distractions, spectacles, and entertainment. The passages are tools to learn to deal with the challenges of life on life's own terms. The practices answer questions about how to build resilience, how to have a better quality of life, and, ultimately, how to succeed. The practices are arranged in a progression which builds upon each other. The lessons are prefaced with foundation philosophy and or studies which support the practice. The practices are a great way to begin the day as morning messages but can be utilized at anytime. Teaching the practices at a certain time each day promotes routine, consistency, classroom management and expectations. The dual-purpose education practice provides students with non-cognitive skills which are essential to be successful in school and life. RISE uses the umbrella of the confidence, perseverance, and resilience...
